In Hong Kong, waste plastics account for 20% of the MWS each day, putting a strain on the city's landfills and posing a threat to the marine ecology. SUEZ is among the founding members of the Alliance to End Plastic Waste, an international initiative launched in January 2019 to end plastic waste in the environment, especially in the ocean. In Hong Kong, SUEZ NWS is a leading services provider in waste and water resources management where it currently manages over 2/3 of the city's waste.
